

H-1B REGULAR PROCESSING

We will first evaluate your situation via consultation by email, fax, or telephone. If the evaluation result is positive and feasible, we will recommend that you apply for H-1B status.

As part of our H-1B service, we will: obtain the prevailing wage determination (PWD) for your job from the National Prevailing Wage Center (NPWC) or a private survey agency; guide you to collect all the information and documents required for the H-1 application and, if applicable, the H-4 application (for dependent spouse and children); file a Labor Condition Application and obtain approval from the Department of Labor; complete USCIS's H-1B forms; draft the petition letter for the employer; and submit a set of completed and signed H-1B petition materials to the USCIS.

In the event that the USCIS requests additional evidence about your pending application, an experienced attorney will submit the additional documentation required for your case.

H-1B PREMIUM PROCESSING

We will do a preliminary evaluation of your situation via an email, fax or telephone consultation. If the evaluation result is positive and feasible, we will recommend that you apply for H-1B status with a request for premium processing, in which the USCIS will make an initial decision on your case within 15 days.

We will finish the paperwork and file your petition within 3 business days of receiving all required documents from you.

In case the USCIS requests additional evidence about your pending application, an experienced attorney will submit the additional documentation required for your case. -
